Manager Comments

In January the fund’s benchmark gained +0.61% while the fund posted a performance of +0.59% for the month. The US 10-year yield ended the month at 4.54%, almost unchanged versus end of 2024.

The investment-grade credit market remained broadly stable in the first part of January despite the uncertainty caused by rising interest rates that tested the highs reached in 2024 and approached psychological thresholds of 5% in the U.S. and 3% in Europe. In the second half of the month, after the U.S. CPI report, which appeared to halt the upward trend in interest rates, and with the resurgence of a strong and well-received primary market, cash spreads tightened, once again demonstrating resilience. The segment continues to see positive inflows into dedicated funds, which provide technical support to both the secondary and primary markets. The primary market was particularly active in the U.S., where January marked a record month for new issuances, totaling nearly $200 billion. Despite growing risks and some degree of uncertainty due to tariffs and fiscal policy in the US, we maintain our central scenario of fixed-income assets benefiting from spread tightening in the context of rate cuts in a slowing macroeconomic environment.

The portfolio is well diversified (around 135 issues) with an overweight sector exposure to financials versus non-financials, with a preference for defensive sectors. Off benchmark exposure to sub-investment grade securities is low, at around 2%, as is exposure to off benchmark AT1 securities at 3.1%. At the end of the month, the fund's average yield (around 5%) was in line than that of its benchmark index (4.98%) for an average rating of A-.

ESG risk: Although the portfolio manager intends to implement the ESG investment process as described in the Mediobanca Group sustainability policy (<https://www.mediobanca.com/en/sustainability/esg-and-the-focus-on-consumers/esg-in-our-group.html>) and on the CMB Monaco website (<https://www.cmb.mc/sites/default/files/2022-05/CMG%20MONACO%20ESG%20POLICY.pdf>), the success of the ESG strategy largely depends on third-party data providers as well as their methodologies and IT systems. These data are not systematically tested or verified by the manager. Consequently, the manager may invest in or divest from a security based on information provided by a third party that may later prove to be inconsistent with the fund's criteria. This could occur when the provider considers additional information that causes the investment to no longer meet the investment criteria. Moreover, multiple providers may be used; however, different providers may present differences, discrepancies, or inconsistencies regarding information related to certain companies. Therefore, in some cases, an internal assessment is conducted to evaluate the company's involvement in a certain activity or controversy. In these cases, the manager does not guarantee that the internal evaluations meet investors' expectations regarding investment or divestment according to the ESG investment process.
